Many Abstract Fine Art clients will need a mix of original art and reproductions to create a strong visual impact while also extending their purchasing power. In particular, clients who require a substantial portfolio of artwork typically employ a tiered strategy putting significant works in public and client spaces while using more cost-effective, but equally attractive and enjoyable choices, in other areas. Art that works does not have to be original to be effective.

In addition to paintings and digital prints, our extensive collection of contemporary works offer equal visual satisfaction at a reasonable price. Buying art is an investment in pleasure. Clients can view and consider these options and an enormous range of styles and choices in our studio gallery, conveniently located in the Little River Business District in Miami Florida.

In the world of business, art does not merely serve a decorative function. It also provides companies with the opportunity to project a positive corporate image. Whether you are looking to gift a client or decorate the wing of a hospital. Abstract Fine Art has the expertise and experience to leverage the many aesthetic benefits of art to express your unique corporate culture. Our goal is to create the greatest impact within a business environment, consistent with the purpose and nature of the workspace or theme. Whether your project is for a particular room or a complete building, we work closely with you and or your design team to develop an art program that is economical while still communicating a desired aesthetic. For large scale projects, we work with your design team to develop a custom proposal consistent with the overall design strategy while satisfying common business parameters within a prescribed budget.

For most of us, purchasing art for our homes is often about falling in love with a work of art that gives us great comfort and pleasure. Sometimes, it's about creating a special feeling or mood in a particular space. And occasionally, it's about finding just the right image to complement a room. For business, art can subtly communicate to both clients and customers a signature corporate image. It can enliven public areas, improve workplace surroundings and even stimulate creative thinking. Art can also be a way of contributing to the cultural life of employees and the community. The intrinsic value of art can neither be quantified nor qualified based on price alone. While the art world can put a "market value" on work that is internationally or historically prized, fashionable, or popular, wonderful images from William Phelps Montgomery and Abstract Fine Art can be acquired in a very broad range of prices to suit nearly every budget. Good art does not have to be expensive to be effective.
